Wyvern is ready for the summer!

Wyvern has had a preview of better weather yesterday. Although temperatures did not even reach ten degrees, there was some sun and the sky was blue. The government felt like celebrating, so the national monument was briefly decorated with a paper parasol and photographed.

The summer is the favourite time of year for many Wyvernians.

They can go on a holiday and they can contribute to physical projects. The government is looking forward to the summer and has started producing old-looking paper for a written version of the new Constitution. Yesterday, a water rocket was produced, but it was not compatible with the launching device and it was put in storage for a better moment. The WAF-01 was flown for a while, but mysteriously lost its battery power when filming commenced. Yesterday was a productive day.

New OAM Influence Survey

OAM Secretary-General Tom-Turner has announced on the MicroWiki Forums that there will be a new OAM Influence Survey. This new survey in which micronationalists are asked what they think about the influence of micronations in the MicroWiki community. This time, Turner said, the results of the OAM elections should be taken into consideration.

As always, it is difficult to tell what the exact results for the Influence Survey will be. Some general things, however, are reasonably easy to predict. For example, nations that have achieved things since the last Influence Survey are expected to rank higher, while some inactive nations may rank lower than last time. We will also see some new nations in the Third Survey.

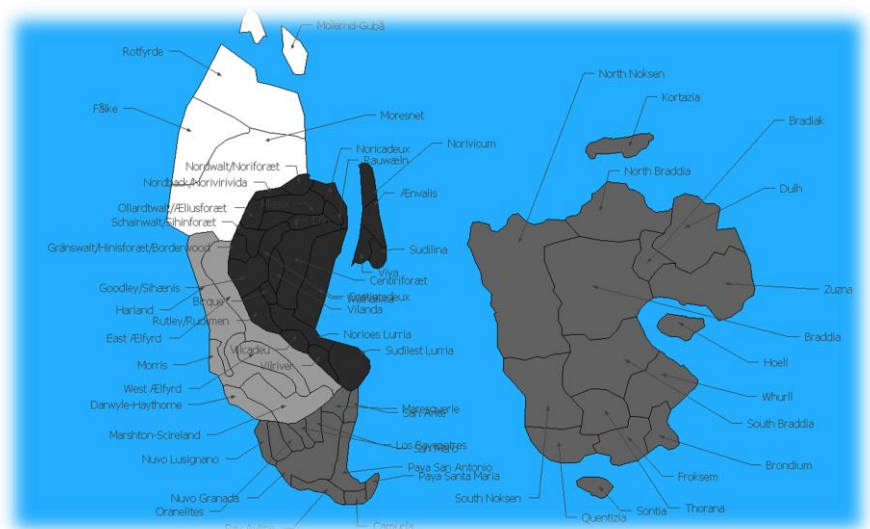

Micronational Did You Know...

- Molossia is nearing its 10,000th day of the war with East Germany
- Wyvern is the third nation in the line of nations by the current government, founded in 2009 from the remains of Snakia and the GSC Territory
- Kozuc Khanate is a nation consisting mostly of foreign micronationalists
- There was a 'Starland Revolution' from January 28 to February 3, 2011
- Sirocco rose by 12 spots in the Second OAM Influence Survey
- Wyvern rose by five spots to the seventh place, although another change in this is likely to happen in the course of the Third OAM Influence Survey
- Vedistan considers itself the most influential nation in the community, despite widespread criticism of its lies, misbehaviour and overstatements
- The micronation of Bahoudii offers high-quality micronational news on a regular basis using YouTube

Minecraft is an awesome game with a growing number of players, both micronationally and macronationally. The Kingdom of Wyvern offers a server where micronations can get their own piece of land to build, destroy and do whatever they want. Buy Minecraft at <http://www.minecraft.net>

Introducing Quintium and Braddia

It is a little-known fact that the government of the Kingdom of Wyvern does more than creating vehicles that fail in a potentially deadly manner and make shows concerning communist animals who try to murder everyone in their path.

The geofictional project of Miasquia, mostly the nations Quintium and Braddia (kudos to if you're able to guess whose nations those are), has been in existence since 2007, with Quintium's predecessors dating back to the late 1990s when it was known as Q-Land and mostly involved drawings of battles, ships and castles in historic times ranging from the Middle Ages to the 19th century. Braddia has existed since 2007, although Bradley (oops) has had some previous experience as well.

Detailed information exists on Quintium. For example, there was a king who died at the age of 101 in 1870, after a long reign in which he successfully stopped democracy from being introduced to 'his personal nation'. His progressive and democracy-adherent grandson Barcqu IV of Thisbiel was crowned king and finally brought democracy to Quintium.

VOTE BRADLEY!

MicroWiki moved hosts

MicroWiki, the community where Wyvern is most active, has moved hosts. This decision was taken by admin Peter Bralesford because the previous host accused MicroWiki of being a spam website. The host seemed to suffer from memory loss.

The new host will hopefully be better, with a lot less downtime.

Have fun y'all

Wyvern Navy Launches WRB Yabloko

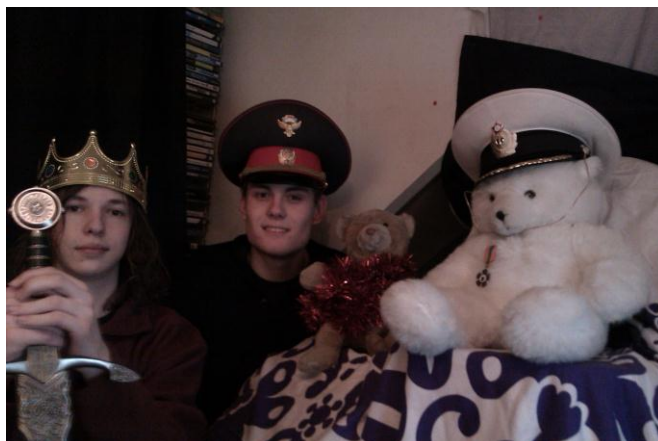

The Wyvern Navy has launched its new physical ship. The WRB Yabloko is a primitive model sailing vessel built using pringles cans, a simple mast and paper sails. Unfortunately, the WRB Yabloko started to capsize and sink as soon as it was launched, so it was removed from the water. There are plans to keep the WRB Yabloko as a museum piece.

The Wyvern Navy has broken its tradition of strictly virtual ships by building the WRB Yabloko. The virtual ships were named after micronations widely suspected or proven of being fictional, while the physical ships will be named after micronations widely believed or proven to be real.
